Kinzer Partners Brings in Life Science, Medical Sector Expert

Marcelo Garcés

Kinzer Partners, a team of real estate brokers and industry professionals assisting Seattle-area businesses and organizations with their commercial real estate needs, has brought on an industry veteran in the life sciences and medical sectors to continue the company's expansion in those growing fields.

Marcelo Garcés has joined the group, and will focus on life science and medical properties in addition to data center development and transactions, according to founder Craig Kinzer.

Most recently the managing director of Savills Studley's office in Seattle, Garces handled project management and brokerage services over an 18-year career in commercial real estate, including land acquisition and due diligence, contract negotiations, entitlements, design-build, program management and execution.

Garces' hire comes just two months after Kinzer Partners welcomed capital markets expert Stuart Williams.
